One of the hot topics of today is about the world, the environment and humanity's place and responsibility within it. The drive is to 'Go Green': by reducing carbon emissions on the one hand and go re-wilding on the other. This concept can't be bad as it is based on the Genesis verse 2.15 The LORD God took the man and put him in the Garden of Eden to work it (till it) and take care of it. Thus, we can see that the responsibility for the care of this planet, Earth, has been given to humankind by God. The question is, 'how do we use or abuse that responsibility'?

In her new book, Genesis, A beginner's guide to the beginning, Amy-Jill Devine challenges us to think through the challenging content of the Book of Genesis and to see its relevance for today's world. We are using her book as the basis for our study in our homegroup. You might want to use her book as an Advent discipline as her themes are based on; creation, conflict, judgement and mercy.

If you are interested in exploring the book of Genesis below is a link to the introduction: Genesis | Amplify Media

For more information about the book and resource please contact me on: cyrilm123@gmail.com